ESSENTIAL EVERYDAY NUTRITION
The legendary Ningxia wolfberry, also known as the goji berry, has long been sought after for its rich nutritional content. With documented use dating back to the Ming Dynasty, it is one of the earliest known superfruits utilised in ancient Chinese practices. For more than 700 years, the Ningxia region of China has earned the reputation for producing and cultivating premium wolfberries. It is from this region that we have selectively sourced wolfberries for NingXia Red®. However, due to the Ningxia region’s physical and political isolation, knowledge of the remarkable wellness-supporting benefits of the Ningxia wolfberry remain relatively hidden from Western culture.

In 1999, Gary Young brought wolfberry seeds to the U.S. and began planting them on his farm in Mona, Utah, where the soil and climate were very similar to that of the Ningxia province’s wolfberry growing climate. Today, we have more than 100 acres of wolfberries under cultivation in Utah. We also continue to source our wolfberries directly from China to meet the ever-growing demand for this nutritious superfruit.

NINGXIA RED ICE BLOCKS

SERVES 4     PREP TIME 10 min     FREEZING TIME 12 hours

INGREDIENTS

½ cup Water
1 cup NingXia Red®
2 drops Young Living Orange essential oil

DIRECTIONS

1. Combine all ingredients and divide equally between ice block moulds, leaving about 0.6 cm at the top for expansion. Put lid on and place sticks in.

2. Freeze overnight or until frozen through. To free the ice blocks from their moulds, dip the frozen moulds in a bowl of warm water until the ice pops loosen. If the stick comes out before the ice block, reinsert the stick and put the blocks back in the freezer for a few more hours.

3. To store, remove all of the ice blocks from the moulds, place them on a wax paper-lined tray, and refreeze for 10 minutes. Place ice blocks in freezer bags, separated by strips of waxed paper.
