

TRACK YOUR SHIPMENTS!

As you eagerly await your package of essential oils, you can check up on where your favorite Young Living products are and when they'll arrive on your doorstep.

United States Postal Service (USPS)

INFORMED DELIVERY:

This free service sends you email notifications when packages are headed your way.

FEATURES:

- See shipments that are en route and when they'll arrive.
- Access what's recently been delivered to your address for up to 15 days after they've arrived at your home.

After signup, USPS will mail you a confirmation code in a letter to the address you provide, verifying that you are who you say you are.

For more information and to customize your notifications, visit informeddelivery.usps.com.

This service is available in the U.S. only.

United Parcel Service (UPS)

UPS MY CHOICE:

This free service, which you can access online or through the app, features a calendar showing exactly when your package will arrive with links to access tracking information.

FEATURES:

- Access a paid premium subscription that allows you to schedule packages for delivery on a different day and to a different address.
- Request a two-hour confirmed delivery window with the paid subscription.

UPS provides shipping notifications via email or text message when you opt in.

For more information and to customize your notifications, visit ups.com/mychoice.

This service is available in the U.S. and 13 other countries.

FedEx

FEDEX DELIVERY MANAGER:

This free service, which you can access online or through the app, allows you to track packages being sent to your address.

FEATURES:

- Input delivery instructions or request that the carrier hold the package at a nearby location.
- Pay to schedule delivery for another date or have your package delivered to another address, depending on the package.

When you opt in, you can receive notifications via email, text message, or automated phone call.

For more information and to customize your notifications, visit fedex.com/delivery.

This service is available in the U.S. only.